Explanatory notes

This competency refers to the ability to use digital media in different contexts, taking into account both the threats and the opportunities. It requires an understanding of the potential opportunities and threats of digital media in order to make informed decisions about their use.

Rationale

Digital media offers a variety of opportunities, including the possibility of global networking, efficient information exchange and improved access to knowledge. At the same time, there are also risks associated with their use, such as privacy issues and security concerns.

Example: An example of the application of this competency would be if someone uses social media to make professional contacts, but is careful about sharing personal information to minimize privacy risks.
